Mechanical Integrity

What is Mechanical Integrity (MI)? How do organizations establish maintenance programs and why should (even small) businesses consider them? How can failures lead to incidents including EHS, quality, and productivity? Brian will share his opinion on common failures he sees across EHS/MI in the various industries that he serves, and offer a top 3 mistakes made and possible solutions. He will share how an EHS pro might "sell" better mechanical integrity and preventative maintenance programs to upper levels of management. What are the costs vs. benefits of even the most basic PM program? What are some of the larger cost spills he's seen as a result of failed integrity testing, or integrity testing pitfalls might be good for a lot of smaller companies. Is a clamp a good way to fix a pipe permanently? Why/why not? He will help us understanding the basics of "good" mechanical integrity. Many of us are good at finding root "human" causes, but what are indicators of "preventable" mechanical failures?

Katerina L. Bond, Senior Human and Organizational Performance Advisor, Chevron Technology

Human and Organizational Performance: Part 2 – Now What?

Kat will continue the discussion around human and organizational performance introducing how the company has operationalized the principles and concepts with their systems The April presentation started with an introduction to Human and Organizational Performance (HOP) e.g. What is HOP and why should I as a safety professional investigate it? Is it old or is it new? Why and how would safety professionals make a case for HOP in their organization?

2021 Safety Professional of the Year Winner

JON HALL – Nusil Technology

This prestigious award goes to an individual that continuously dedicates and strives as an outstanding member of this Chapter. It is the highest honor in this field, recognizing an individual in our profession within the community whose work has had an outstanding impact and achievement, recognized for their technical skills, expertise in the field, in the Environmental Health and Safety profession, the SPY award implores leadership and initiative. This year's awards committee had their work cut out for them. The list of nominees included some of the most hardworking and passionate individuals in this field.

This year's award goes to an individual that you all know every well. Some of Jon's official serving titles and some unofficial roles have been: Social Chair, Symposium Planning Committee, President Elect, President, Past President, Social Media Chair, Webmaster, Nominations Committee, logistical host committee (that's a new one), but above all, this individual has shown their passion in training. The principles of having a structured training program to transfer knowledge and experiences to others and is the current Environmental Health and Safety Administrator at Nusil Technology for over 18 years.

Rising Star Award

Vanessa Galvan

Vanessa came with a lot of energy and positivity, taking on the challenge along with another member to be Co-Chairs of the newly formed Hispanic Safety Professional Common interest group. She was instrumental in the planning, execution, and presenting of two webinars hosted by the HSP Group. It was her idea to offer webinars in both English and Spanish language to serve a wider audience, something never seen before. She selflessly gives of her time to be speaker at our Bakersfield Symposium in topics of great interest with professionalism and charisma and most recently volunteered as a speaker at the ASSP Bay Area PDC Symposium. She is also engaged with the HSP Advisory Committee at the society level as Co-Chair of Chapter Liaison. They lend their support for other members who wish to set up their own HSP group within their chapter. To date, there have been 9 HSP Local area groups created with her help, including one in Lima, Peru. In her role as Corporate Agriculture Safety and Health Manager for the Zenith Insurance Company, she is considered a subject matter expert in the Agriculture industry by her peers due to her extensive experience in the industry, as well as for her passion to safeguard the welfare of the workforce, who she serves with both humility and respect.

Steve has held the following official chapter positions – 2020-21 Long Range Planning Chair and 2019-20 Long Range Planning Co-Chair. But the heart of this award is not because of his official positions, it's because of his unselfish work behind the scenes.

Steve has been a long standing, consistent member of the symposium planning committee, the largest Professional Development and Fund-Raising Event the chapter has annually. Not only has he quietly served, he took on very difficult roles, ones that few folks want to touch with a ten-foot pole. One of the most stressful volunteer positions in the planning committee is the person who coordinates the computers and projectors for all the breakout sessions. Imagine finding the equipment, setting it up and troubleshooting it all day long for a variety of speaker situations. Who does that? Steve does! If you go to the Library on our chapter website, you will find over 30 Bakersfield Chapter Operating Guidelines. Steve will be the first to tell you that he worked with a colleague on these documents. What are these documents? When someone has an interest in serving the chapter, what's are the first questions they ask? What are responsibilities of the (volunteer) position? What's the time commitment? Our recipient performed a lot of work on them.

Rising Star Award – Steve Henslee
